John F. Maloney, CPA, CFF, CVA, ABAR, a partner of Wouch, Maloney & Co., has served an integral role in the growth of the firm since he joined it in 1981. His experience involves all areas of taxation, accounting and auditing, management consulting and business valuation. He has extensive expertise in construction accounting and provides proactive business consulting to the many closely held entities that he advises.

Mr. Maloney has received an advanced license as a Certified Valuation Analyst. As a CVA, he has prepared business valuations as a part of forensic accounting, litigation support, mergers and acquisitions as well as shareholder disputes, marital disputes, buy-sell agreements, lost profits analysis and numerous taxation matters.

Mr. Maloney has also attained Accreditation in Business Appraisal Review (ABAR) from the Institute of Business Appraisers. The ABAR certification is a unique credential that specifically qualifies its holders to issue an opinion on the credibility of business appraisal reports prepared by other appraisers in accordance with newly standardized review practices. This credential enables him to identify strengths and potential weaknesses in appraisal reports as an expert's expert.

In representing clients in litigation support matters, Mr. Maloney has testified as an expert in various county courts and has been appointed by the Bucks County Court of Common Pleas to act as the independent accountant in resolving disputed accounting issues.

Mr. Maloney has lectured on accounting, tax and valuation issues, including before the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants. He is active in various trade associations such as the Home Builders Association, Subcontractors Association of Delaware Valley and is the Immediate Past President of the Bucks County Estate Planning Council. He is certified to practice in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.
